I hereby certify that I have examined the above accounts and find them correctly cast and properly vouched.

RHODOLPHUS GREEN, Auditor.

In submitting our annual report, your committee have thought best to follow in the same line as the report of last year, and not to report each school in detail, with the success or want of success of the teacher, but to give a general view of the work of the school year. As will be seen by statistical table there have been sixteen terms taught, each school receiving the same number of weeks. In teaching the sixteen terms, ten different teachers have been employed, seven of them were experienced teachers, the remaining three entering the field for the first time. With the exception of one or two the teachers gave good satisfaction. It would be one step in advance, in the direction of securing competent teachers for our schools, if the town would vote to raise more money than that required by law. The neighboring towns are able to hold out greater inducements than we are able to do. Some of the school-houses in town ought to be put in better condition or new ones erected in their stead.

Your committee have endeavored to do all that they could under the circumstances in which they are placed, to promote the cause of education, and to secure the best possible results for the money expended.
